What is Adventure Challenge?

Adventure Challenges is a game/Challenge that needs/requires, trust, open-minded, teamwork and communication. It's a game or challenge that always need these things and steps to succeed successfully.

Communications

In adventure challenges, communication is very important, it will help you through a lot of challenges. You'll need hearing and talking (discussions) for telling the challenger what to do, so then you could then know what you must do, like: turn around, go forwards, get down and get the ball and... These are all very to know while you are the challenger. But if you don't communicate and don't talk+listen, you'll end up bumping into the wall or something.

Trusting

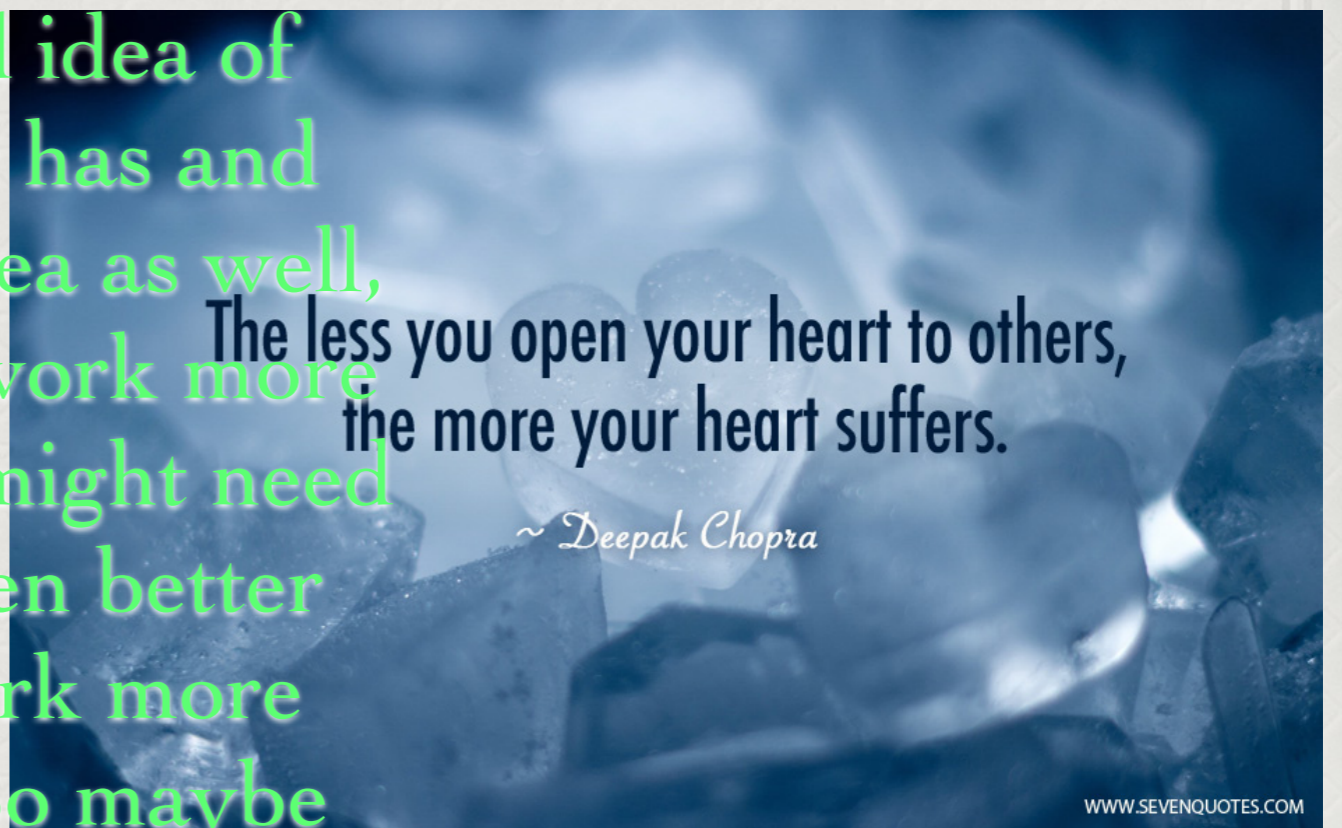

TRUSTING

Trusting also is a very important rule in adventure challenges, because if the person that is telling you where to go and do or directing you, but the person's not so trustworthy for you, you won't enjoy and calm down, you might always think that you might bump into something or what, it won't do any good for you, so where/when ever you are you must always be trustworthy and so that everyone would be able to be safe.

Open-minded

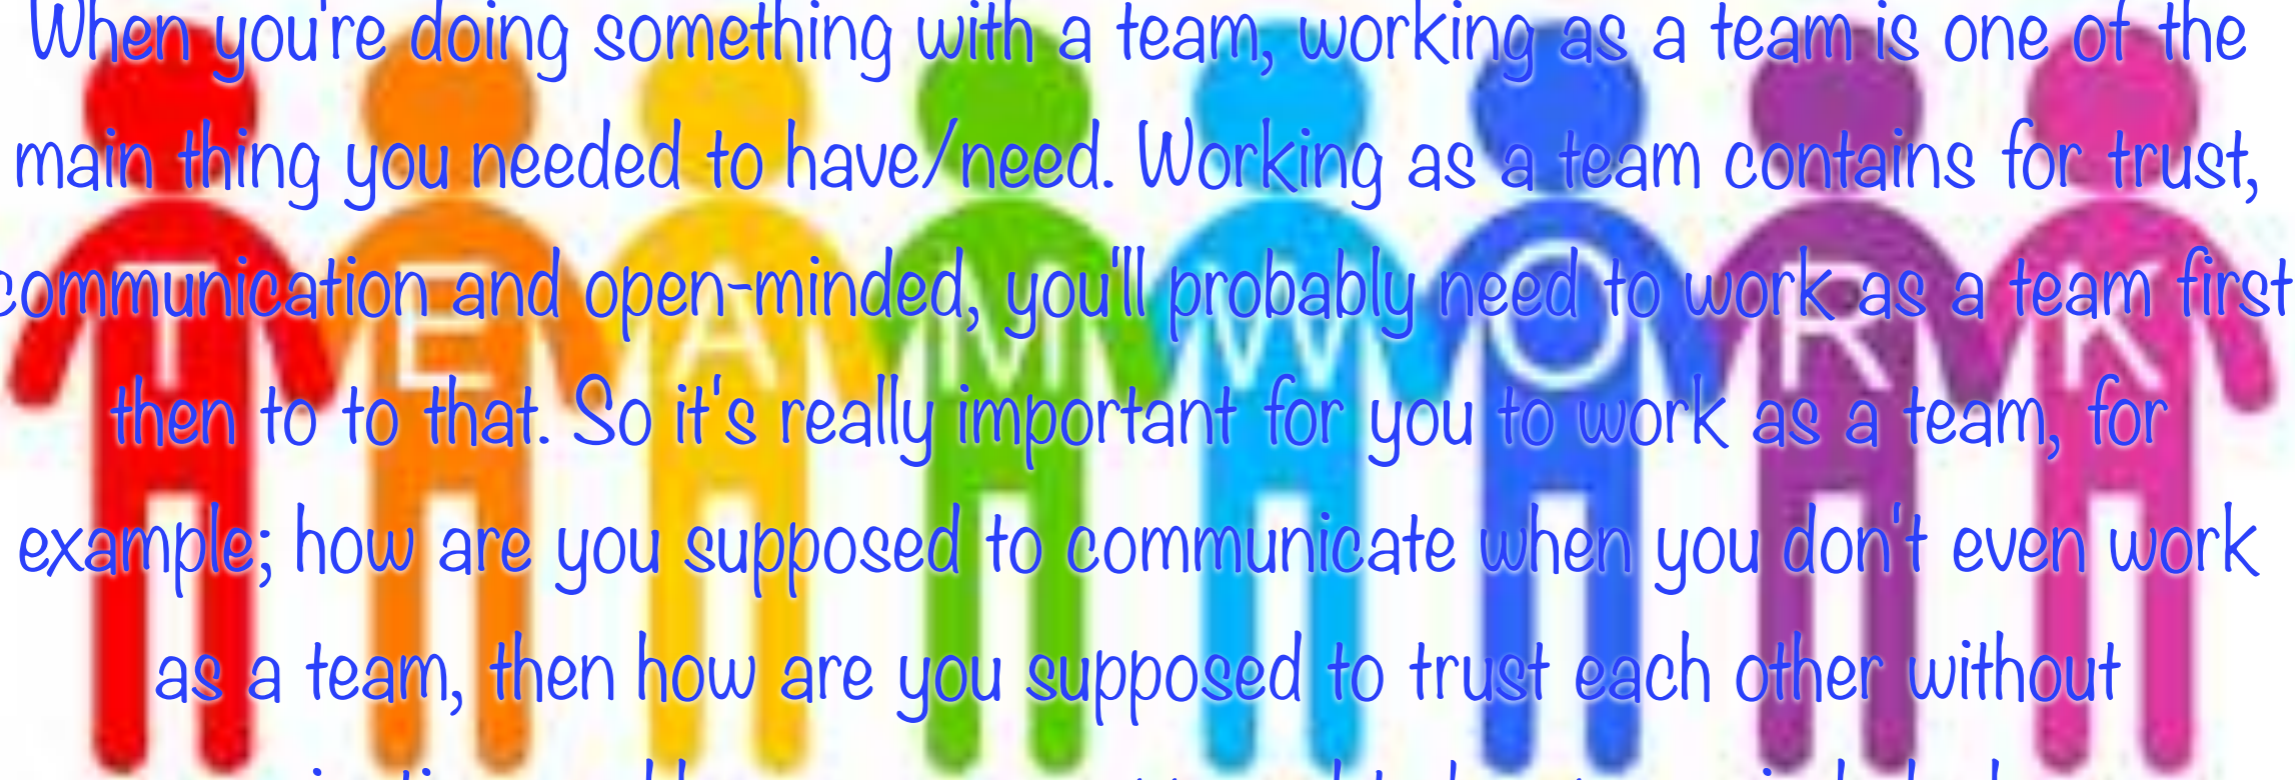

Open to others's ideas are very important as well, because sometimes when you work in groups and discuss, and someone else gives an idea of doing somewhat and he/she has an idea, but you have another idea as well, then if the others's idea will work more successfully than yours, you might need to follow his/her idea, or even better limit it together and it'll work more better than both of yours! So maybe you should be open to others's ideas and your group's plan is going to work really successful.

The less you open your heart to others,
the more your heart suffers.

Working as a Team

When you're doing something with a team, working as a team is one of the main things you need to have/need. Working as a team contains trust, communication and open-mindedness, you'll probably need to work as a team first then to do that. So it's really important for you to work as a team, for example; how are you supposed to communicate when you don't even work as a team, then how are you supposed to trust each other without communicating, and how are you supposed to be open-minded when you don't even work as a team or communicate? So, once you've gotta do an Adventure Challenge or whatever, you've always need to work as a team for the whole time.

Caterpillar

Caterpillar, is a game with teamwork and cooperation. In this game, there are several hoola- hoops to help you get the bean bags and not drown. First, you take all the hoops one and one limited together, the pass the last one to the front and put it down onto the ground next to the front one, and it keeps going until you get your beanbags.

But in the game caterpillar, similar to that, is called Blind Caterpillar. The instructions are all the same, but the first person that puts down the hoops needs to have a blindfold, so that he/she couldn't see, and the other teammates would not be able to touch that person and is all needed to communicate, so then the first person would need to trust his/her teammates and do what is told.

Shark

Shark, is a game that needs team work, while your team is the catcher, there must be a god, and the god makes the islands go away, it's a very important job, and while your team is catching, you'll probably need to communicate to get the more people. And so, while then, sometimes you'll need to communicate for the god to come or some what get other people that's not on islands.

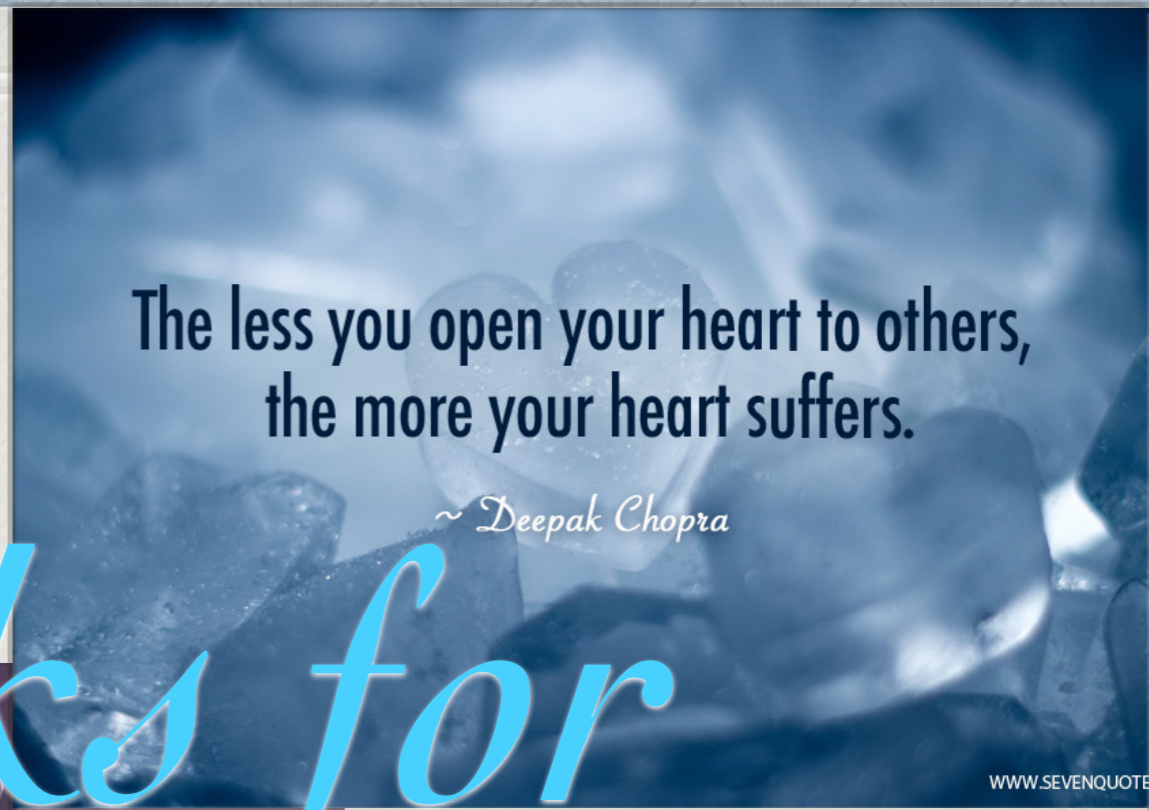

信任如纸 一旦弄皱 永无复原之时

TRUST
is like a paper
once it's crumpled
it can't be PERFECT

again

不管你如何努力抚平，都不可能平复如新

You can flatten the paper and try and make it as straight as you want, but it will never be the same again.

The less you open your heart to others,
the more your heart suffers.
